OUR STORY

From a Single Act of Compassion

In 1993, a newborn girl was abandoned and brought to a Chinese orphanage. Believing that a single act of compassion could make a difference, David Gotts rushed the baby, whom he called Rose, to a nearby hospital for treatment. She died later that night.

Rose lived less than 24 hours, but her short life touched David's heart and inspired a commitment to compassion and care. Reflecting on the squalor he'd witnessed at the orphanage, David's life was forever changed: "These precious children were no longer nameless, faceless babies. To me, each one became as Rose had been: a sacred life to be fought for."

ICC Begins

International China Concern was founded later that same year.

Driven by a desire to share God's love with all children in China with disabilities – ICC opened China's first therapy and education-focused care centre. Praised by the Chinese government and other non-profits across the country, ICC's revolutionary approach has made a deep and lasting impact on the care of children with disabilities.

The powerful story of baby Rose and ICC's work to support children with disabilities in China is at the core of the book – "China's Oasis: Love, hope, and opportunity for the hidden children of China."

OUR MISSION

Our mission is to ensure every child with a disability in China is embraced by love, fueled by hope, and empowered with life-changing opportunity. Our care and services help every child not just survive, but thrive.

OUR VISION

Our vision is to see all children with a disability live fulfilling lives in a welcoming society that accepts and respects them.

As China continues to evolve economically and socially, ICC is keeping pace to meet today's needs and anticipate tomorrow's opportunities. We envision a future serving tens of thousands of children with disabilities and their families, while overcoming prejudice in the communities in which they live.
